AMERICAN SOCIETY FOR NEURAL THERAPY AND REPAIR - 30TH ANNUAL CONFERENCE

The conference is composed of basic and clinical neuroscientists who utilize transplantation, gene therapy, tissue engineering and related technologies to better understand the way the nervous system functions with the goal of establishing new procedures for neural repair in response to trauma, neurodegenerative disease or other disorders.

30 Years of Developing & Translating Neural Therapies for Repair

The ASNTR conference provides an annual forum dedicated to the exchange of scientific information related to cutting-edge stem cell technologies, development of stem cell models of disease and injury, and the use of neural grafting to promote tissue repair and advance our understanding of neural growth, maturation, plasticity, regeneration and function. Approximately 150 society members and conference participants include leading scientists, doctors, and students who are actively engaged in research and education in the field of neural transplantation, gene therapy, cellular engineering and repair. Over the last 30 years, the ASNTR annual conference each year has been a great success and this year, especially after COVID travel restrictions lifting, we predict that the level of participation will be even greater!

2023 Program Highlights

This year's program includes updates from leaders in the fields of stem cell biology, disease modelling, and regenerative medicine in disease topics that include Spinal Cord Injury, Parkinson's disease, Huntington's disease, Alzheimer's disease, Traumatic Brain Injury, Stroke and more. This meeting is at the hosts a broad range of presentations from the pre-clinical development of novel cell and gene therapies to clinical trials with emerging technologies. This meeting will also seize the opportunity to reflect on clinically relevant advances made by members of the society over the past 30 years.

Investment in the Future

The ASNTR Society recognizes how crucial it is to encourage participation of Early Career Investigators and Trainees (undergraduate and graduate students, postdoctoral scholars, research associates, etc.) in meetings such as the ASNTR. Each year the Society awards Trainee Travel Grants to encourage in person participation at the Conference. The abstracts are evaluated by ASNTR Education Committee and top abstracts are selected for Oral Presentations. This year there is a dedicated session for the best 3, and finalists will present in a Data Blitz session. All Travel Award recipients also attend the Trainee Workshop scheduled on the first day of the Conference, with programs ranging from Funding Opportunities, Careers Beyond Academia, Intellectual Property and Entrepreneurial Skills among others. An additional dedicated session this year will be host presentations from Early Career investigators for their Vision for the Future and the next 30 years of developing and translating therapies for neural repair.
